Russian Urals discounts tripled in India since August

REUTERS
Moscow, November 21

DISCOUNTS FOR RUSSIAN flagship Urals crude in Indian ports have tripled since August against dated Brent as US sanctions drive key buyers away from Moscow-supplied oil, three sources involved in the trade said.

The US last month imposed its toughest sanctions yet on Russia's energy sector, targeting oil majors Lukoil and Rosneft. Friday marks the deadline for companies to wind down all dealings with the two producers.

Urals crude has been a mainstay feedstock for Indian refiners since 2023, when Moscow redirected flows to Asia after the European Union banned Russian energy. But supplies to India are set to fall sharply as most refiners suspend purchases, traders said.

Reliance Industries, the nation's largest private refiner, stopped importing Russian crude into its Jamnagar complex in Gujarat effective November 20, a company spokesperson said on Thursday.

Despite the sanctions, Russia's oil exports from western ports remain near peak levels, supported by OPEC+ output allowances and domestic refinery outages caused by Ukrainian drone strikes.

Urals cargoes for December delivery are trading at discounts of $5–$6 a barrel to dated Brent, about three times wider than the $1–$2 seen in August, according to traders and Reuters calculations.

The price for Russian oil delivered to Indian ports is typically set on a delivered-ex-ship basis, meaning the price excludes transport costs and other charges borne by the seller.

Urals crude free-on-board at Russian ports is currently estimated at around $20 per barrel, depending on cargo and supplier, traders said. Most shipments are handled by Russia-linked "shadow fleet" vessels, allowing Moscow to retain part of the margin from the price differential.

Freight rates have held steady despite sanctions on vessels.

Centre to release new GDP series on Feb 27

FE BUREAU
New Delhi, November 21

THE MINISTRY OF Statistics and Programme Implementation will release a new series of national accounts with FY23 as the base year on February 27, 2026.

Ahead of the revision, MoSPI has issued a discussion paper on methodological improvements in compiling national accounts through the production and income approaches, and invited comments from experts and stakeholders by December 10, 2025. The revision is guided by the Advisory Committee on National Account Statistics chaired by BN Goldar.

A second paper, detailing changes in the expenditure approach, will be released later.

MoSPI said the update aims to incorporate new data sources and improve the accuracy and relevance of national accounts for policy analysis.

The ministry added that broad stakeholder participation will help ensure the robustness of the revised GDP series.
